The Walmart Playbook

Make your costs lower than anyone else's, then give the saving back as price. Volume lowers costs again.

1 · LOCATION

Start where giants don't bother. Fill one region, niche or channel completely before the next.

Ask: what's my "small town"?

2 · LOGISTICS

Goods and work should never sit. Measure waiting time between steps; kill the longest wait first.

Ask: where does my stuff wait?

3 · DATA

Share sales data with suppliers and partners; trade it for better terms and less stock.

Ask: who should see my numbers?

4 · PRICE

Stable everyday prices on core products. Only cut price if the maths works.

Ask: can volume really double?

Volume needed = Old unit profit ÷ New unit profit

$0.40 → $0.20 profit per item = you need 2× the sales just to stand still.

Weekly habits

- [ ] 30-min team meeting: 3 numbers, 1 win, 1 stolen idea
- [ ] Update the shared sell-through sheet
- [ ] Same-day reply rule (the "sundown rule")
- [ ] Two competitor walks a month

Don't

- Copy the low price without the low cost.
- Cut what customers feel (stock, speed, service).
- Paste your home-market playbook into a new market.
- "Simplify" away the reason people buy from you.
